One of San Diego's most popular

FOR SALE

San Diego top residential real estate website

Just in the past six months

www.brokerforyou.com

averaged over 26,400 Unique Visitors per month!

Unique visitors is totally different from hits – one unique visit, is one visit within a 24-hour period from one specific computer/smart phone.

So if you go to brokerforyou.com right now it would count as one unique visit, if you show it to one of your associates late this afternoon from the same computer or smart phone you used previously it would not count at all!

If you haven't already, you could just buy another website but it would take you years (if ever) to achieve the same traffic, search engine rankings and YouTube video rankings that brokerforyou.com already has achieved!

Over 17 Yr. old domain (most believe Google's algorithm looks at the age of a domain in determining positioning its rankings) makes new post and pages rank much higher than if the same were posted on much younger website.

Over 1000 backlinks!

A lot of our YouTube real estate videos also rank very high on the Google search engine itself. What's really good about this, is that usually Google just displays one YouTube video per page of its return search engine results. Therefore, since all the other results returned are just text, video returned with the search engine results really draws the searcher high to that video. Now let's take a look at a few popular San Diego residential real estate search phrases on page ONE of the returned results of Google searches done within the last couple of days:

If you're still reading this, by now you have comprehended the power of my domain. In the search engine optimization world most insiders realize that to fully utilize the power of the Internet service providers should have more than one website!

Our site is set up now as a WordPress blog and is very easy to maintain and to use. Also, because BROKERFORYOU.com is a generic real estate term, it can fit in as a secondary site, or for that matter the main site for any real estate service business in San Diego!

About five years ago I ran into some serious health issues and that combined with my age, have caused me to spend more time on my hobbies than on real estate. Now, it's time to offer BROKERFORYOU.com for sale.

To be totally upfront, to maintain and increase the visitors and rankings of the site I would have a web designer incorporate some type of proven lead capture system into the site. I thought about doing this myself some years ago but just never got around to doing it.

I've been advised not to make any claims as far as the number of potential new sales leads or customers can be achieved by owning this website. With that said, think about the cost of maintaining a site like this. Domain registration typically runs about 10 or $12 a year and web hosting on an annual basis runs about $120 a year. Naturally, to keep the domain popular and increase rankings you do have to continually make relevant new real estate blog post each month.

With San Diego's average residential home selling for close to $500,000, just one new listing from this website could generate (3% listing side commission) $15,000 at the successful close. You will

In determining an asking price for this website I really cannot find any comparable sales, or for that matter reliable information. So what I decided to do is to offer this on an all cash basis for the website and my brokerforyou YouTube channel, to some of the largest real estate brokerages in San Diego.

Should I not be able to put together a successful sale of this website I'm considering offering for top agents in San Diego County the exclusive opportunity to be featured on the site. These agents would be featured as the go to agents for downtown San Diego, South Bay, North County, Coastal and East County. With generating over 26,000 unique visitors per month, I think it would be relatively easy to find five top agents who would pay a monthly advertising fee to be featured on the site. Because this advertising scenario would require me to continue to write articles and create YouTube videos it's my secondary option because I would rather just sell the entire website. But, this is another idea for a potential purchaser . . . To use the website as an advertising revenue generator!

If you're interested, or require more information please contact me. Otherwise, just email over your best cash offer.

 I also have a number of San Diego and Los Angeles and San Francisco residential real estate WordPress sites that I've been aging for a number of years. I'm also going to be selling these sites based on the net amount of unique visitors they are receiving and their standings for page 1 returned results on the three main search engines. Basically, I'm not going to be selling a site unless it ranks on page 1 of at least one of the three main search engines for a highly desirable, popular, specific neighborhood keyword phrase.

These sites do not compare to brokerforyou.com as far as content and ratings go, but if an agent was to develop a site today, it would probably take them at least three or four years to get the traffic and possibly the same rankings, that these sites already command. So, it's like getting a two or three year head start on the competition, see real example below:

The image shows a screenshot of a YouTube search results page. The search bar at the top contains the text "serento valley real estate". A yellow box highlights this search bar. A red arrow points from the search bar to the first video result, which is titled "Sorrento Valley Real Estate" by seo7111. A blue callout box with a white background and a blue border points to the first video result, containing the text "Page ONE of Youtube 1st video under the ads". The search results page shows several video thumbnails and titles, including "Don't Flip Houses", "Top Real Estate Agent", "Sorrento Valley Real Estate", and "San Diego Real Estate Tour- Sorrento Valley/Pacific Ridge 92121 w/ Billie Bourgeois, Coldwell Banker". The search results page also shows "About 1,760 results" in the top right corner.
